Annual Report and AGM papers

The Faculty's 2014 Annual Report has now been published and can be downloaded from the members' area of the website.

The agenda and papers for the Annual General Meeting on 8 July have also been published for members.

We look forward to welcoming any current subscribing members to the meeting.

Coffee and croissants will be available beforehand so if you are planning to attend the AGM but are not attending the SOM ASM, please contact Frances Quinn if you have not already done so.

Queen's Birthday Honours

Congratulations to Dr Ken Addley, Honorary Fellow of the Faculty, who was appointed OBE in the Queen's Birthday List for his services to occupational health.

Dr Addley was awarded Honorary Fellowship in 2004. He is Director of the Northern Ireland Civil Service Occupational Health Unit.

Mobbs Corporate Health Fellowship - Rae Chang

Dr Rae-Wen Chang has written a report outlining her experience at the 2014 Australasian Faculty of Occupational and Environmental Medicine (AFOEM) Annual Training and Scientific Meeting.

Dr Chang was awarded a Mobbs Corporate Health Fellowship to fund presentation of a paper at the conference. You can read the report in full, as well as reports from previous winners, on the website.

We are grateful to Corporate Health for their continued support for the Fellowship.

Medical Student Electives

The Faculty also offers funding to medical students and foundation doctors to undertake electives that involve aspects relating to occupational medicine.

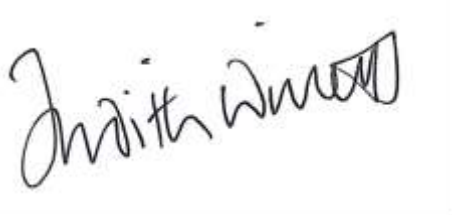

Previous recipients of funding have undertaken a wide variety of exciting placements across the length and breadth of the globe; from the arctic to South Africa; from Nepal to Western United States.

The funding is a valuable opportunity to increase awareness of occupational medicine among the next generation of physicians, so we are grateful to both ExxonMobil and Corporate Health for their continued support of the awards.

You can read reports from recipients on the website, along with information about how to apply if you know any young doctors who are undertaking electives.
