Promoting Positive Mental Health in Health Professionals

1 October 2010

Newry, Northern Ireland

Joint conference with the Irish Faculty of Occupational Medicine

This conference will consider the particular mental health problems which health professionals can experience. The focus will be on how these problems should be addressed and how health professionals can best be supported. An expert group of speakers will cover various aspects, including what to do when there are concerns about a practitioner's health and wellbeing, how to prevent burnout, and stress reduction for GPs.
